LEED: Sustainable Strategies for Interior Lighting

Tuesday, November 9, 2010

The Albany Section of the Illuminating Engineering Society (IES) wishes to invite you to a presentation related to Energy Efficient Lighting entitled "LEED: Sustainable Strategies for Interior Lighting".

Our presenter for this program will be Adrian Howitt. With 17 years experience in the lighting industry, Adrian brings a diverse range of skills, experience and enthusiasm to his role at Ledalite. Having spoken to many disciplines and trades during his career, Adrian is a confident, dynamic and engaging speaker who makes a special effort to continually teach "the art and science of lighting" to audiences of all levels. In the last year Adrian was invited to speak at Harvard to the Architecture Program as well as Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Prior to joining Ledalite, Adrian worked as a technical lighting sales specialist at one of the largest lighting companies in Canada. Upon joining the Ledalite team in 2006, Adrian worked in both the Applications Engineering and the Sales departments.

Designed for Architects and other lighting professionals, this seminar will review strategic applications for interior lighting that can be used to maximize sustainability objectives for commercial spaces and qualify for LEED points.

Learning Objectives:

After the completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand specific LEED categories related to interior lighting and control strategies
- Learn how interior lighting practices can have a large impact on LEED projects
- Apply sustainable lighting strategies to meet progressive energy code requirements
- Integrate innovative lighting and control technologies for sustainable environments

We hope you will join us for this informative and unique discussion. We are confident you'll find the time well spent.
